

UPGRADING (DOWNGRADING) THE MATRIX

We are each- and all- one of the parts of the Whole.

Clearing our perception back to Love.

Our reality is a version of The Reality. All realities are a version of this- as though an interpretation of it. Another way of saying this might be that our reality is a copy of itself. Its greater self. It's as though there were a Primary Reality that all other realities are derived from. A blueprint of Consciousness that all individual consciousnesses are expressions of, and exist in... stand out from for a time... for a life-time perhaps (maybe many)... and then are re-absorbed. By the way, 'to exist' means 'to stand forth.'

You are a version of Love- that, to a greater or lesser extent- has left Love behind. Distanced itself in order that it may define itself as 'something else'- as anything else other than the Truth of Love. For the purposes of a particular experience. So that, after all, that Love may know Itself. Perhaps, you are a version of Love that has grown closer to it. That has become more aware of its Ultimate Nature, beyond the plays and cycles of temporary existence. Beyond the sub-versions of nature- the creative copies.

Purest Love is the Pure Consciousness that is the Source of all Creation. The Essence of everything that exists- underneath and above all other appearances and impressions. Everything is made of this. There's nothing else that anything can be made from- other than false artifice. Which is false. Artifice. Everything- if it exists- is made of Love. Once in the world of the made, standing somewhat alone, somewhat apart, and somewhat different (from the Infinite Source, and all the 'other' made things too- also born of the Infinite). We are copies of Love, 'cast out,' and finding our own way (Love's Way) back.

Here we are, as apparently separate body-mind entities in a world of apparent separation (even though it is all connected, as it's all the 'product' of the same One Infinite Consciousness). All the parts of the Play of Love. Each one of us- one of the parts... of One. And ourselves, each made up of various and different constituent parts. Moving away from... or coming back. To what we may not yet have realised is What We Are. Waking up is coming back to the Whole you come from. Realising your existence is this. That there is no other. Is coming back to the Nature of Reality, beyond all expressed realities. Your True Self- clearing your perception back to Love. In this... the Wholeness is coming back to you... because you are coming back to it. The Wholeness of Love. Liberation. Here you can live... the Wholeness of Your Self... Being... in form.

The alternative is to go further into fragmentations, separation, away from Wholeness. And into false worlds that claim to be able to offer you fulfilment. A being of form, without awareness of Being. But this kind of 'fulfilment' is never fulfilled. Empty promises. Flashing lights. Hope and baseless expectation- that your body-mind form will overcome all existence. That your little ego will be king, or queen. That the solely separate 'you' can become a super-human being. And that that super-human being can be made immortal in a synthetic-electronic artifice. But nothing is human here- let alone super. The true super-human is spiritual. Is soul returned to Spirit. Is not a product of the constructed, updated, man-made machine, lost in fruitless ego-drives.
